Explore Westport's Town Records

Many town officials through the decades and centuries have saved and protected some documents relating to the history of the town and the area. Many of these documents are now available on the Westport town website, <http://www.westport-ma.com/historical-documents>. Documents include personal papers of Paul Cuffe, the Town Farm (Almshouse), and town meeting records. Find a document/s that interest you. What does the document tell you about Westport's history and why does it interest you?

Your Family's History

Research your own family history. How did your own family come to live here in Westport?

Change

Interview an older person about how their daily life has changed during their lifetime.

Preservation

Westport is notable for the quantity and quality of its historic buildings. Is there a historic structure, place, building that you feel is important to preserve and why? What are the motivations and benefits for Westport to save an historic place versus demolition, alteration or neglect?

Explore the collection of the Westport Historical Society

Thousands of historical photographs and documents in the collection of the Historical Society can be accessed through an online database. <http://wpthistory.org/collection/>. Explore the database and find photos or documents that interest you. What do they tell you about Westport's history and why does it interest you?
